

Georgia

Born and raised in north-west London, Georgia is a multi-instrumentalist, producer and songwriter. Her eponymous debut album was released in August 2015; written, performed, produced and recorded by Georgia in its entirety at her home-studio; it presented a very necessary new talent, one with real spirit and one that is unabashedly herself. 2019 sees a return from the Londoner, establishing herself as one of the most singular and irresistible UK pop talents.

Georgia's music is fascinating and sharply paced, packed with injections of lightness and fun, pared with rich, bubbling melodies that makes listening to it an experience that takes you into the party, through electro-pop into R&B, and back again. Feminine without being saccharine, her deep, brooding reflections carry us through euphoria, heartache and melancholy but always with the memory of the good times. Georgia is reminding you of the altitude of your last real thrill, and when we turn her music on, we're there again, aching for more.

The euphoric, "Started Out" is infused with hedonism and influences from the Chicago house scene of the 80s. It's a shining example of Georgia's flair in the studio; melting her thrilling pop lyricism, with her rich wealth of production experience.

Whilst "About Work The Dancefloor" comes as a defiant slice of electro-pop, exploring love, passion, melancholy and the thrill of finding yourself on the dancefloor. Showcasing Georgia's upbeat pop brilliance, the track is a reflection of the rich influences of Georgia's personal experience with club culture.