

“Once a bucolic area close to D.C., McLean is now a sophisticated and glamorous setting for large and elegant homes in this well-known and desirable suburb to the District.”

– Mary Douglas Drysdale

The Master Bedroom is beautifully proportioned and located on the terrace level to appreciate the thoughtfully designed landscape and gardens that contribute to the sense of estate and luxury of the home. The room was designed with the idea of quiet luxury for an art collecting couple wanting to focus on artistic expression from every view and perspective, while selecting classic modern furnishings. The look is casual luxury without pretension. The tone-on-tone, off-white color expression provides a softly textured background for the dramatic works of art found within the suite. Regional artists provide the color, graphic forms, and intention—a strong moment from every perspective.
